

Cindy Hazuka
Contact: cindy.hazuka@gmail.com

My name is Cindy Hazuka

I am a recent homeowner in La Jolla Shores. My family and I moved to the area for work in 2012. I fell in love with La Jolla and am passionate about optimizing its future for all citizens and visitors. I am an active volunteer with the California Native Plant Society and National Charity League Seaside Chapter. I have a PhD in Molecular and Cellular Physiology from Stanford University with a background in drug discovery research but am currently retired as a scientist.

I offer the ability to assess the merits of projects based on data and facts and not anecdotes. I will ask questions and research the processes that have brought a project forward to be sure it is complying with the La Jolla Community Plan and the City General plan and other ordinances. I will be objective to the needs of the people, city and merchants and work towards compromise.

I want to represent the citizens of La Jolla. I want to see the LJCPA run efficiently so that decisions are transparent and supported and work to the benefit of La Jolla. I'd like to work with all of the community groups to help La Jolla come up with a long term development plan that attracts visitors and businesses but maintains the integrity and charm of a close knit beach community. La Jolla is a great place to live. Let's keep it that way.

Hi Diane -

Glad I ran into you this past weekend. Look what I found on GIS. I am really curious as to where the "existing use" and "planned use" maps are derived from. It has SO MUCH of La Jolla as converting to single family to multi-family dwellings!!!!!!

In any case - below is a draft candidate statement. Appreciate your comments.

Thanks,

I am a recent homeowner in La Jolla Shores. My family and I moved to the area for work about 7 years ago. I am an active volunteer with the California Native Plant Society and National Charity League Seaside Chapter. I have a PhD in Molecular and Cellular Physiology from Stanford University with a background in drug discovery research but am currently retired as a scientist.

I can offer the ability to assess the merits of projects based on data and facts and not anecdotes. I can ask questions and research the processes that have brought a project forward to be sure it is complying with the La Jolla Community Plan and the City General plan and other ordinances. I can be objective to the needs of the people, city and merchants and work towards compromise.

I want to represent the citizens of La Jolla. I want to see the LJCPA run efficiently so that decisions are transparent and supported. I'd like to work with all of the community groups to help La Jolla come up with a long term development plan that attracts visitors and businesses but maintains the integrity and charm of a close knit beach community. La Jolla is a great place to live. Let's keep it that way.

